CATALOGUE INTRODUCTION

In 1964, Erik Routley (1917-1982) published a book entitled Twentieth Century Church Music, an expansive solo debate on the nature and development of contemporary writing for the Church. Routley said, 'this is the beginning of a discussion', yet this remark was to prove ironic: serious criticism of new church music has been minimal since that day, especially within cathedral and high-church circles.

However, this is not to say that cathedral music has become static, or that its new repertoire is unworthy of comment. Indeed, in consideration of the wealth of material produced by composers for the Cathedral in recent years, musical assessment following Routley's ideas seems long overdue. Thus, to facilitate an accurate assessment of cathedral music in the present day, the thesis begins by recalling Routley's 'discussion', and detailing the pathway of contemporary cathedral music repertoire over the last thirty-six years. The appendix, the Sacred Choral Music Catalogue, compiled by the author, takes 1965 as its starting point, listing the majority of modern choral cathedral music currently in British circulation to aid the reader's knowledge of the repertoire.¹

As the thesis that accompanies the Sacred Choral Music Catalogue (SCMC) suggests, there has been relatively little documentation of contemporary cathedral music and composers in the last thirty-six years. At the start of my research, this presented some difficulty, for a thesis cannot be justified without some evidence of the repertoire discussed. Therefore, over the course of 1999, it was necessary to compile this catalogue as an appendix to my work, detailing much of the music written for cathedral and high-church use (available through English publishers), from 1965 to the present day.

Constructed in collaboration with publishers and cathedrals in England, Scotland and Wales, the information contained herein is based upon information gathered from publisher-catalogues, cathedral libraries and the British Library Music Catalogues (pre and post 1980). The International Who's Who in Music and Musicians 1999 has helped to establish the dates and places of birth of many composers, while dates of composition (c.) / publication (p.) are included where known² alongside a description of the publisher. Information is listed in date-order under alphabetical composer-headings, and for accessibility, it is divided into two sections: Anthems, Motets and Music for Occasional Use, and Service Settings and Responses. Similarly, for ease of use, the alphabetical index of first-line titles is divided into four sections (as indicated on the Contents page).

It is hoped that this extensive list of new works might be of benefit to Cathedrals, encouraging awareness of new musical repertoire through presenting it in its own light. However, the catalogue does not purport in any way to be a record of every choral item that has been written for, performed by or promoted in the Cathedral since 1965. It presents only a selection of choral service-repertoire and music for occasional use.

It should be noted that the list is largely based on material such as publishers' lists, library catalogues, etc.... While every effort has been made to eliminate errors, it has not been within the scope of this Masters thesis to check every piece

² Hardly any publisher-catalogues list the dates of composition or initial publication, and since many of the pieces included in this catalogue are (for some reason) not listed on the British Library's database, it has been necessary to conduct private research directly with publishing firms to obtain the dates now listed in this document.

Some of these firms have well-organised date-archives stretching back years, yet the task of date-searching proved more difficult with companies with whom publishing dates were only located on the scores themselves: dates were only obtainable through direct purchase. One firm wrote, "if you join the Superlist Club, I can offer you a 40% discount", yet despite the appealing offer, the volume of music that would need to be purchased (approaching 800 pieces) was still rather impractical.

While every effort has been made to find missing dates, the dates of many pieces that are published by some firms reliant on scores for publication-date confirmation could not be obtained. These include the dates of music published by the companies Oecumense, Basil Ramsey, Boosey and Hawkes, Ricordi, G. Schirmer (Music Sales), Warner Bros (Maecenas) Samuel King, as well as CPP/Belwin archive music and pieces of the Oxford Choral Archive held at Banks Choral Archive Centre, Sand Hutton, York.

of information for accuracy. The author acknowledges the likelihood that there will be mistakes, and hopes to eliminate most of these in the course of time.

I declare that this work is my own, and does not contain any unacknowledged material from other sources.
